GOLDEN, COLORADO – Echoserve, Inc. has launched the world’s first online portal designed to facilitate the research, purchase and sale of diagnostic ultrasound equipment. echoXpress.com (www.echoxpress.com) provides objective third-party information along with best-in-class research tools to assist consumers with critical equipment decisions. The site aggregates product data from a variety of sources and then scrubs this information to ensure accuracy and thoroughness.

“Our goal in creating echoXpress.com was to bring total transparency to buying and selling ultrasound equipment,” said Christopher M. Cone, Chief Executive Officer of Echoserve. “The site has accomplished this goal by combining unbiased product information with true real-time market pricing.”

“By leveraging our extensive product knowledge and our nationwide field service group and our relationships with Original Equipment Manufacturers, distributors, dealers and leasing companies we are able to save buyers an average of over 35% on their equipment investment. In addition, EchoXpress.com provides both private and professional equipment sellers the opportunity to showcase their equipment to a broad international audience,” added Mr. Cone.
