GOLDEN, COLORADO - Echoserve, Inc., announces the addition of Bill Williams to its corporate Board of Directors. Mr. Williams served as President of Pyxis Corporation. Pyxis was one of the nation's most successful public offerings in 1992 and led to a billion-dollar merger with Cardinal Health, Inc.

Previously, Mr. Williams spent 20 years with Johnson & Johnson, Howmedica and DePuy, closely involved with the development and marketing of numerous medical devices, capital goods and services, and software applications for the healthcare marketplace.

"I'm delighted to have Bill on our Board," said Christopher M. Cone, Chief Executive Officer of Echoserve. "Bill's experience creating world class medical device sales and service organizations will significantly contribute to the development and implementation of Echoserve's channel strategies."

"Echoserve is an extremely interesting company," added Mr. Williams. "They do business with a broad cross-section of healthcare providers, from the single-physician OB/GYN office to the world's largest research hospitals. As we refine and focus their market positioning, the company will begin to truly exploit its significant value proposition."

Mr. Williams is the Founder and President of Faranhyll Foundation, Inc., whose charter is to foster value-based leadership in corporate life and is the author of Wrestling with Destiny. He serves on the Board of Directors of several privately held medical companies.
